Ex-position (formerly NTU Studies in Language and Literature) is published twice a year by the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures of National Taiwan University. It is devoted to publishing work in the critical humanities revolving around literary studies by scholars based in or interested in areas outside of the Western European/American world. Publication of the journal is supported by National Taiwan University. The journal also receives funding from Taiwan's National Science and Technology Council through its Research Institute for the Humanities and Social Sciences.
